Agency fee vs PSA membership fee

The PSA, as a registered union, represents employees in the Public Service and parastatal institutions in individual and collective labour matters.

The PSA has noticed that many employees in workplaces where the PSA is a recognised Union seem to believe that the PSCBC (Public Service Coordinating Bargaining Council) agency fee is the same as the PSA membership fee. The PSCBC's agency fee is a deduction made in terms of section 25 of the Labour Relations Act, No 66 of 1995, from employees in the Public Service who are not affiliated to any union. The reason for this "agency fee" is that these employees also benefit from collective agreements signed by unions pertaining to rights and interests, despite them having chosen to be non-affiliated. These non-affiliated employees are required to pay a monthly fee (R107), which is divided amongst recognised unions in the Public Service.

Advice to PSA members

Members resorting under the PSA Provincial Office in Johannesburg are advised to verify that their pay slips reflect that the correct deduction is made. This will also assist the members when in need of assistance from the PSA to ensure that fully paid-up membership to benefit from the services of the PSA.
